Robert DelaGiroday	Yes." It is always better to be proactive than reactive. Prevention of the permanent capitrity of excitic or at-risk animals is a far superior approach than trying to repair the damage after the fact."	ves. "While there is a spectrum of treatment for animals in entertainment, ensuring humane conditions that allow for comfort and growth is paramount. The entertainment industries have a long way to go in ensuring adequate conditions that don't affect an animal's contentment or development."	Yes. "How we treat animals, especially those that sustain us, is a testament to the type of people we are – or should be. Transparency and accountability are key for an industry that has so many avenues for potential abuses."	Yes. "Choices in nutrition, including availability of plant-based foods, is important to everyone's quality of life."	Yes. "While I would support a Meatless Monday initiative to support a more varied diet and curtail overconsumption, I do believe it needs to be a matter of personal choice rather than dictate."	Yes. "I would support better education around per-friendly rend for (and/ords and responsible pet ownership tenancy for tenants. We need to ensure that there are sufficient pet-friendly units, and that the miniority of pet owners that don't care for their units don't ruin the reputation of all pet owners."	Yes. "Nuisance' animals exhibit behaviour that almost always is a manifestation of abusive or neglectful circumstances. We need to ensure that the welfare of the community is balanced with the welfare of the animal. This requires a more holistic approach to investigation."

Darin Nessen Priscila Omulo	Yes. "There are no current city of Port Caquitam bylaws around wild or exotic animals in capityth tot could find. As we do not have any zoos or aquarismis I would be willing to propose the establishment of such bylaws in a preventative measure."	Yes. "I am against animal crueity and I recognize there boundaries to what animals should and could be used for when taiking about entertainment."	Yes. "I would do my best to work with farmers and within the municipal boundaries to bylaw what we can to regulate the oversight of the animal farming industry."	Yes. "Port Coquitlam has great community engagement with community garders and by highlighting the benefits of locally grown plant-based foods 1 believe that the city would build on that engagement with other programs and initiatives."	Yes. "As an indigenous woman that chooses not to eat meat most of the time is eag reat benefit in this movement. I see many indigenous people strengting with health and food security to highlight health and how it is connected to food would be something I and mainliar with and interested in seeing how the city could support such movements."	"I would like to see what could be done on all levels of government working together to create some support on both sides. For example a rent bank for deposits so pet owners and fandlowits have some security in possibility of damages and other pet related concerns. "	Yes. "As Port Coquitlam frequently has bears in the residential areas I would like to see uno clonyl kape presautions to not draw bears to our garbage by locking bins but also by ways of us knowing how to safely remove ourselves from the area bears are and adarely encourage the bears to go in less residential areas. Keeping both residents and the wildlife safe."
